H. M. AYRES HAS SEA-SERPENT FOR SALE

Herbert Melton Ayres, formerly a newspaper reporter in Honolulu, but more recently publisher of "The Bund" in Shanghai, arrived quite unexpectedly yesterday in the steamship Siberia. According to Mr. Ayres, he may remain here for about two weeks on business.

While here he will endeavor to perfect his naturalization as an American citizen. He appeared yesterday before Clerk Maling of the United States court and showed his discharge from the U. S. Volunteer Engineers during the Spanish war. As a discharged soldier he hopes to get his complete naturalization. And behind this there appears to be a story. According to tales told by officers of the Siberia, Mr. Ayres recently printed in his paper some things which certain people affected by the publication did not particularly like. In fact they said the matters printed referred to them improperly and to this end they have offered to prove that they were libelous. It was then that Mr. Ayres is said to have found he could have no recourse for a defense in the British courts, they alleging he was not a British subject, and the American Consul did not recognize him as an American citizen. Herbert does not look like a Frenchman, and his accent is not of Russia, Germany or Italy. So Ayres, it is said, decided to come to Honolulu to establish his political identity. As Herbert has been absent from Honolulu more than a year, he is to all intents and purposes a stranger of but one day's residence, so far.

Ayres came into town with a new fish story. This time it is about a sea-serpent, and Ayres is a past master in telling sea-serpent stories. This time he quotes history to help him out. Of course, everybody remembers the story told by the officers of a French war vessel to the effect that a sea-serpent was seen off the coast of China. That is an authenticated fact. Now Ayres goes one better. He brought the head of a sea-serpent to Honolulu. It is created and looks like the pictured dragons on the Chinese flags. Sub rosa, Ayres says that he is thinking of taking the head on to present it to the Rothschilds. Rothschilds, as everybody knows, live in wealth, and Ayres, well, he wouldn't mind floundering about in a gold bog for a while.

A magazine editor, seeking an increase of circulation, sent to each of his 3,500 subscribers this query: "What was the most important act of your life?" Twenty pounds for the best true answer." He received more than a thousands replies, all but one relating some particular deed of which the writer was proud. The exception and prize winner was brief and to the point. "Being born," he wrote. Encouraged by the success of his scheme of advertising, the editor sent out a second query, offering a further twenty pound note for the best answer. This was the question: "Last month you stated what was the most important act of your life: now tell us what is the most important act of your life." The varieties of replies would have made several pages of rare humor, but the winner solemnly wrote, "Breathing."—London Chronicle.

A writer in the Cornhill Magazine has found some delicacies of the French language in a handbook of etiquette for French children. The pupils are warned not to say, "I have been eating cheese and calf's head, monsieur," or "He was riding on a donkey, my lord." This construction of the sentence is "very rude," for it implies an intimate relation between the calf's head or the donkey and the personage who is addressed. To avoid this one should say, "I have been eating cheese monsieur, and calf's head," or "My lord, he was riding on a donkey." That useful but ridiculous beast must be kept behind the nobleman. Tourists in France must be careful where they put the calf's head or they will imperil the entente cordiale.
